Conference Overview

This free international conference is the 16th annual conference in a series that explores recent advances in medicine, biotech and pharma. NO REGISTRATION IS REQUIRED. As in past years, the major sponsors are the Pharmaceutical Research Institute (Rensselaer, NY) and Bawa Biotech LLC (Ashburn, VA). This year’s conference is focused on innovative advances from nanomedicine to precision medicine. The conference will offer networking opportunities to physicians, scientists, engineers, lawyers, business professionals, technology transfer specialists, policy makers and venture capitalists. Last year’s conference drew over 100 attendees. Conference Link: <https://pri-albany.org/>

Terminology and Definitions

Although the terms “nanotechnology,” “nanomedicine” and “precision medicine” are relatively new, the concepts have been a part of healthcare and biomedicine for many years.

Nanotechnology is the design, characterization, and manufacturing, application of structures, devices and systems controlled by manipulation of size and shape at the nanometer scale that produces structures, devices and systems with at least one novel/superior characteristic or property. (Source: Nanomedicine 2(3):351-374; (2007))

Nanomedicine is the application of nanotechnology in a healthcare setting to prevent and treat human disease.

Precision Nanomedicine is “an emerging approach for disease treatment and prevention that takes into account individual variability in genes, environment, and lifestyle for each person.” (Source: NIH) This approach will allow doctors and researchers to predict more accurately which treatment and prevention strategies for a particular disease will work in which groups of people. It contrasts with a “one-size-fits-all” approach, in which disease treatment and prevention strategies are developed for the average person, with less consideration for the differences between individuals.

Young Scholar Poster Awards

All awards will include a plaque or certificate. Two “Young Scholar Awards” (sponsored by Dove Medical Press, UK) will be presented for best posters in the amount of $250 each by Dr. Thomas J. Webster, Editor-in-Chief of the International Journal of Nanomedicine. Additionally, the “Young Investigator Award” (sponsored by Bawa Biotech LLC, Ashburn, VA) will include signed copies of the 2-volume set, Handbook of Clinical Nanomedicine (<https://www.amazon.com/Handbook-Clinical-Nanomedicine-Two-Stanford/dp/9814316172>). The “Best Poster in Biomedicine Award” (sponsored by MDPI AG, Basel, Switzerland) in the amount of $250 will be presented by Dr. Shaker Mousa, Editor-in-Chief of Biomedicines. The poster competition is open to all students (undergraduate, graduate, medical, law, pharmacy), medical fellows and pre-/postdoctoral fellows. Posters may be brought directly to the conference site on September 17.

Travel, Lodging and Parking

Coffee breaks (sponsored by Biomedicines, MDPI AG, Basel, Switzerland) and lunch (sponsored by the Pharmaceutical Research Institute, Rensselaer, NY) will be provided to all attendees at no cost. Free parking will be available adjacent to the conference venue. There is a large selection of lodging available close by: <http://www.albany.org/hotels>. The closest airport is the Albany International Airport, a 20-minute taxi ride to the conference site. Limited travel funding for young investigators is sponsored by Bawa Biotech LLC (Ashburn, VA). Contact Dr. Bawa to apply for travel awards at bawa@bawabiotech.com.

Call for Authors

All speakers and attendees are invited to contribute to the book, The Road from Nanomedicine to Precision Medicine, which is volume 4 in the Handbook of Clinical Nanomedicine series and due to be published in spring 2019: <http://www.panstanford.com/>.
